POWDER EXPRESS

Mad Pow Disease Strikes Fall Line Skiers

By Dave Lummis

On January 16, Fall Line Ski Club joined other area ski clubs in Big Sky, MT for the annual EPSC (Eastern Pennsylvania Ski Council) Carnival. When we got there, we were greeted with 6" of new powder with more expected through the week. It didn't take long for Mad Pow Disease to set in, contaminating everyone. Symptoms included aching thigh muscles at the end of the day, aching smiles, and loss of friends as you cut them off to get fresh tracks. Ahhh.. but it's worth it.

The week's itinerary included several parties and events and it was great to see our friends from South Jersey Ski Club and the other clubs. But our minds were on the skiing. Most of us got out early Sunday morning, waiting for the lifts to start so that we could enjoy the fresh snow. Big Sky is such a large resort, especially since they expanded into the Moonlight Basin area. It was not surprising that there were times where we didn't see other skiers and boarders. If the light was flat in one area, you are able to ski to another area to catch some sun. If there were two people in front of you at the lift, it became frustrating. There was fresh powder to be found all week.

Our accommodations at the Huntley Lodge were perfect. Each morning, we had to make choices from a full buffet breakfast where we saw others in our group and the other ski clubs to discuss our days. Many, like Glenn Myers, found the outdoor hot tub the perfect place to meet people and to relax those tired muscles. The hot tub became his second home.

This was Patty Pace's first trip with Fall Line and she was wondering what she had gotten into. She didn't know anyone except for Nancy Startare, whom she worked with. In addition, she hadn't skied on over 30 years. But she quickly found that everyone was warm and friendly and she had a memorable trip. By the end of the week, she had her ski legs back and successfully negotiated her way down a black diamond trail, although it was not her idea.

Ken Heath had driven out west to meet us at Big Sky after spending a few days in Park City. So, on Sunday we were skiing with our normal crew consisting of me, Joel Medeiros, Bill Wu, Jane Gonzales, Doug Magowan and Marilyn Malin and Ken who was having problems with shortness of breath while skiing and finally had to call it a day after only a couple of runs. On our second day we set out early for first tracks, while Ken stayed behind as he was going to wait for Jane to get a half day of skiing in, before going to urgent care. But after he called a nurse friend of his & explained his symptoms he told him it was his heart and to go immediately to urgent care. So while we were skiing the fresh power, Ken had to struggle through the lobby, down 3 flights of steps to the outside parking lot, remove the new snow from his truck, drive 9 miles down the mountain to urgent care where it was determined he was having heart failure with a 10% EF. The medics were called, who in turn called for a heli vac. Again, this fresh powder would not allow the chopper to fly from Big Sky to Bozeman so he had a one plus hour trip via ambulance through the snow storm. He arrived at Bozeman Hospital safely and realized the truth in the old saying; "No Friends on a Powder Day". In our defense, we were thinking of him as we skied and did not realize the seriousness of his situation. On a brighter note, he was discharged later in the week and he and Jane rejoined us at the resort before they set off for their long drive home. We are glad to report that they make it home safely and Ken saw his cardiologist and he is well on his way to recovery and looking forward to a great ski season next year!

Even with all of the EPSC activities, our group got together on Monday, taking a shuttle to the Bucks T-4 restaurant for a great dinner that included bison steaks, elk chops, fresh walleye and other local flavors.

There was an EPSC ski race competition planned for Wednesday. Our team consisted of me, Joel Medeiros, Glenn Myers, Jane Gonzales (who bowed out to stay with Ken), Laura Kiefer, and Bobby Adams. We felt good about our chances. The race course was open on Tuesday for practice and for anyone to try. Nancy Startare tried the course but fell and unfortunately broke her wrist. Uh ohh.. two down. Her spirits were great and she was able to have a good time for the remainder of the week.

One Wednesday, our team made its first of two runs, feeling okay with how we did. As we came back for the second run, we were informed that the computers were down and were told to try back in a little while. We took a few more runs nearby, checking in to see if they resumed the racing. Seeing that things were still quiet, we decided to go on our way. After all, it was a powder day. That evening, we found out that the computers never did get working again and they resorted to stop-watch timing. Not only that, the computer lost all of the times up to the computer crash. Many teams, like ours, did not make the two runs. It would have been nice to see how we did against the other clubs, but our bout with Mad Pow disease kept us happy.

The centerpiece of Big Sky is Lone Peak, the majestic pinnacle at the center of the ski area. Its 11,166 ft. summit is accessed by a tram. Steve Umansky and Nona Ostrove, as well as Laura Kiefer and Bobby Adams rode up for the views and were rewarded with a clear sky for some nice pictures. Then there were those of us who waited until the last day, when it was cloudy and brutally windy, to ski the summit. Taking gloves off to take pictures was not a good idea, but we did it anyway, and we then followed Doug Magowan down Liberty Bowl to the south side of the mountain. After navigating a mine field of exposed rocks at the windblown top, we were able to ski down to the protection of the tree below. The south side of the mountain is an area that does not attract a lot of skiers and we again found some nice powder in the trees.

On Tuesday night, EPSC had its Gala Dinner, with a theme of Woodstock and the 60's. There was a sea of tie-dye shirts, headbands, afro wigs, fringed vests and wide bell bottom pants. Some people looked like they never left the 60's. We all had a fun evening, until the after dinner dance blasted the music so loud we couldn't even hear ourselves. So we went on our way, some taking the party to the hotel lounge.

Wednesday was a popular day to take a day off. Ann Marsteller, Patty Pace, Nancy Startare, and Marilyn Malin took a trip to Yellowstone Park. Ann and Nancy took a bus tour, Marilyn and Patty went on a snowmobile. Both groups had an amazing experience with nice wildlife sightings and stops to Old Faithful and other geysers and boiling pots. Marilyn said that it's eerily beautiful the way the steam rises up from the snow, with little pockets of brilliant blue/green water, with snow ghost trees. They also had a close encounter with a bison.

Many of us took advantage of one of our free evenings to visit the Lone Peak Brewery for a nice selection of local craft beers and good food. Others stayed back at the hotel and ate at Chet's, which was a great option as well. There was not a shortage of good food.

As our wonderful week was winding down, we were paying attention to the developing snowstorm back home. Some people, with a more severe case of Mad Pow disease, couldn't care less. The tour organizer had to deal with over 300 people from a dozen or so clubs that would be affected. Getting back as a group was not going to happen. Soon, it became apparent that we were on our own and we started to make our own plans; rescheduling flights and making hotel reservations for Saturday night. We struggled with dealing with the Delta representatives, who wanted us to rebook for later Saturday (even though we knew that the Philly airport was closed) because they didn't show the flights as being cancelled on their computer. Many of us took our scheduled flight to Minneapolis and booked a room there. Nona Ostrove took this opportunity to stay with family. The rest of us had a nice dinner at the Mall of America at the Twin City Grill. Some took a pre-dinner ride on the Mall's roller coaster.

The flights back to Philadelphia started again the next morning and we all got on our respective flights and made it home uneventfully. I give special thanks to Joel for his intuition and guidance of how this was going to play out. I think we were one of the first groups to get back home; the airport was strangely deserted when we arrived. We heard that the group of Laura, Bobby, Jeff Spicer and Ralph Medoro, flew through Atlanta, only to have their flight back to Philadelphia cancelled. They decided to drive back, otherwise they had to wait until Tuesday to get a flight back. We also heard that other clubs had more difficulty, not getting back until Tuesday or Wednesday after visiting half the airports in America.

For many of us, this is our one-and-only ski trip for the year. It is sad that our season ended in January. Others have other trips coming up and we hope their trips will be as great as our Big Sky trip. Ken and Nancy: We hope you are both recovering nicely and expect to see you on a trip next year.

ELECTION TIME FOR THE FALL LINE BOARD

It's that time of year! Yes I know everyone is desperately attempting to stuff that last turtle neck into to their suitcase and keep it less than 50 pounds, but it's also time to think about next year already. Fall Line is a volunteer organization and as such, will only be as great as we make it.

How many times have you thought, why doesn't the club do Well the reason is simple, it's because your voice hasn't been heard yet. Fall Line is comprised of several hundred people with various skill sets that range from CEOs to jugglers. I think the variety is what makes this club so much fun.

The Fall Line Board is comprised of the following standard offices:

President, President- Elect, President -Ex, Treasurer, Treasurer-Elect, Secretary

These seem fairly self-explanatory! The President drinks all the beer, the President-Elect gets to drink all the beer next year and the President-Ex has no beer left, but allows everyone to buy them beer discussing what a great year they had.

The money is always handled with extreme care, so there is a Treasurer who keeps track of the money going-outs and a Treasurer-Elect that keeps track of the money going-ins.

The Secretary keeps minutes for the meetings and is responsible for the collection and filing of all documentation.

Then we move onto the Elected Directors!

We have 6 Elected Directors that serve 2 Year Terms (typically 3 new elected each year) and up to three additional Appointed Directors that each serve a 1 Year Term.

In April we will be electing to fill the President Elect, Treasurer-Elect and the 3 two year term positions. If you are interested, talk to any board member. If you are ready to commit to throw your name in the hat email a bio to Janice Lynch at jml@sicnj.net by March 12th to make the April newsletter.

KILLINGTON – JANUARY 2016

By John Moffatt

Thirty Fall Liners met in the parking lot at the Hotel ML for our Hagey Bus to take us on our weekend getaway. Kathie Read and Taylor greeted us with our high-end beer and wine. John Kennedy was looking forward to this trip more than most, since this was his first trip with the club as a new retiree having retired only minutes earlier. Bob Harmer, our Hagey driver, was extremely nice. We posed for our picture and then hit the road. The party began almost instantaneously and didn't stop until we pulled into the Killington Mountain Lodge (formerly the Inn of the Six Mountains) parking lot at 11:14. Ann Marsteller and Laura Kiefer split the arrival pool money.

After dropping off our bags in our newly renovated rooms, some of us (Patty Shearer and Debbie Serba) hit the hotel's new bar. While Bob Adams, Laura K. and myself indulged in the new outdoor hot tub that's open 24/7 and large enough to fit 50 people. Others from the group including Tony, Charley, Bill "Billionaire" Cook, and Paul went across the street to play pool and drink. They closed the bar.

A buffet breakfast was served starting at 7AM and everyone was up early. A bus load of skiers from the Pinnacle Ski Club and one from the Nassau Ski Club were also staying at our hotel. Skiers could ride the hotel's shuttle bus to the mountain which ran every 30 minutes, take the Hagey bus at 9, or for those who missed all the rides, they could walk up the mountain to the Snowshed lodge. Walk is exactly what Mike and Terry Piorkowski did. These two are in such great shape they smiled when talking about their walk up the access road to the lodge.

We made plans to meet at the Killington Peak Lodge for lunch and then people broke off into groups to ski. Bear Mountain wasn't open and only one trail on Ram's

Head was open, but the rest of the mountains were in good shape. We rode the Snowshed lift up and quickly made our way over to the K1 Gondola. East Fall and Rime also was in good shape and there were no lift lines at the North Ridge Triple. The bottom half of East Fall was in great shape and again no lines at the Canyon Quad.

We went back down to the K1 Gondola, but now the lift lines were longer. The new queuing system in place is very slow for the single riders. The lift attendants took care of that by commandeering cars and putting 8 single riders in a car, which got the singles line moving. We then moved over to the Snowdon Quad since the Snowdon Triple was not running. The lift lines were long, but we did a run on Mouse Run to Conclusion (which was not bumped up as usual) and headed back to the K1 to get up to the Peak Lodge for lunch.

Tony, Charley, Bob, Laura, Brianna, Warren, Ann, Debbie, John, Jeff, Harlan, and Steve all met at the top for lunch. We regrouped and headed back out. Now East Fall and Rime were icy, but the bottom of East Fall was bumped up, which was great. The visibility was fine on those trails.

We wanted to ski Superstar and the lift lines were non-existent. As we rode up we figured out why there were no lift lines. Superstar and the rest of Skye Peak was in a cloud. We braved Skye Lark and headed down High Road to the Needle's Eye Lift. We survived a run down Needle's Eye in the cloud and decided to call it a day by going up the Northbrook Quad and down Snowshed to the lodge.

I wanted to ride the new roller coaster on Snowshed (no lie, there really is a rollercoaster), but I didn't want to spend $20.

We listened to the band, drank some beer and made plans for the night. Back at the hotel, almost everyone came to the hot tub. Plenty of room in the very nice and very hot (105 degrees) hot tub. Snow angels are just something you have to do in an outdoor hot tub. Aaron,

Lee and I did our best snow angels. We weren't able to convince Dana to join us in the snow, but we did motivate the Pinnacle and Nassau club skiers to do their own snow angels.

The Hagey bus took us (Bill, Paul, John, Ann, Debbie, Bob, Brenda, Barb, Ron, and I) to the Wobbly Barn at 7 PM. There was no wait (incredible for the Wobbly Barn) and we got to sit together at a round table for 10. We all enjoyed the salad bar and great food. Brenda, who has a broken foot (happened prior to Killington), had nothing but good things to say about our waiter. We caught the Wobbly Barn shuttle back to the hotel. The second shift, Bob, Laura, Brianna, Mike, and Patty hopped into our shuttle back to the Wobbly for their dinner.

Most people enjoyed talking and drinking at the hotel's bar. Mike, Laura and Jeff went to the Outback for pizza and a great band. I eventually joined them. No cover, a great band and no waiting for pizza, gotta love it. You could hardly see Jeff's black eye at the bar (I can't tell you how he got it since I was sworn to secrecy). We ended up back at the hotel by midnight.

I headed back out looking for Tony who had gone to the Foundry (formerly the Grist Mill), which had another good band and of course Goombay Smashes. Tony finished the night at Moguls, which also had a band and an open pool table. I went back to the Wobbly which by then was slowing down so I headed down to the Pickle Barrel, which still had plenty of life. A large bachelorette party provided plenty of entertainment. We closed the bar and headed to the hot tub, only to find all dudes which told me it was time to go to bed.

As predicted, it was raining on Sunday. John and Lee attempted to brave the rain on the slopes, but were back to the hotel by 10 AM. We cashed in our lift tickets, packed up and headed home early. After a quick stop for sandwiches, beer and lottery tickets, we were back on the road.

We watched Spy, which I think everyone enjoyed. Melissa McCarthy was excellent. Another quick stop at New Baltimore rest area then back on the road for some Tom Cruise in Mission Impossible. We pulled into the parking lot at 6:30PM. Plenty of time to get home and watch the Packers and Redskins play.

Awesome people on this trip made this a weekend to remember.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Warm Greetings to My Fellow Fall Liners!

I hope all of you are enjoying your trips you signed up for put together by the Winter Trip Committee. By the time this reaches all of you the Italy trip will be just about underway or gone and then we have Snowbird in March. By all accounts from what I heard the other trips out West enjoyed lots and lots of snow. The East Coast trips had a bit less snow, but Fall Liners still got out there and skied where they could and partied hard, of course! Thank you to all who posted on Fall Line's Face book page during their trips. It was great to see all the pictures. Safe journeys to all of you on the remaining trips.

Sorry, but I have to bring this up. Please seriously think about giving back to your club and volunteering to serve on your Board. Elections will be coming up soon and it would be nice to have some fresh faces. It is not a life-time commitment; it is only one board meeting a month and a chance to be heard with your ideas for the future of Fall Line. If you are interested, talk to any board member and contact Janice Lynch to get your name on the ballot. Okay, I am done with that, but thanks for listening.

Please mark your calendars for our upcoming Spring Fling to be held Saturday, April 30th at Cater 2U in Mt. Laurel, NJ to celebrate Fall Line's 50th year anniversary. This will be an event not to be missed!

Chris

Volunteerism: What's in it For Me?

In the words of Jim Gibbons, President and CEO of Goodwill Industries International "I will bet you get back more than you feel you ever gave. Volunteerism is as much for the volunteer as it is for the recipient of the volunteer service." As you know, clubs could not exist without the work done by volunteers. By getting involved, volunteers can experience measurable health and social benefits as well as provide a greater sense of self-worth, trust, and lots of fun. This type of fulfillment and reward is not often taken into consideration when thinking about volunteering.

One benefit of volunteering is that it will connect you to other people. Volunteering allows you to connect to your club and make it better for you and for others. Dedicating your time as a volunteer helps you make new friends, expand your network, and boost your social skills. One of the best ways to make new friends and strengthen existing relationships is to commit to a shared activity together. While some people are naturally outgoing, others are shy and have a hard time meeting new people.

Volunteering gives you the opportunity to practice and develops your social skills, because you are meeting regularly with a group of people with common interests. Once you have a momentum, it's easier to branch out and make more friends and contacts.

Another advantage to volunteering is it provides many benefits to both mental and physical health; it's good for your mind and body. Getting involved in your ski club can provide a healthy boost to your self-confidence, self-esteem, and life satisfaction. Your role can give you a sense of pride in the work you accomplish. And the better you feel about yourself, the more likely you are to have a positive view of your life and future goals. Volunteering for the club is good for your health at any age. Studies have found that those who volunteer have a lower mortality rate than those who do not.

Ever thought about advancing your career? Volunteering gives you the opportunity to practice important skills used in the workplace such as teamwork, communication, problem solving, project planning, task management and organization. You might feel more comfortable stretching your wings at work once you've honed these skills in a volunteer position first. Just because volunteer work is unpaid does not mean the skills you learn are basic. Volunteering can also help you build upon skills you already have and use them to benefit your club.

In my opinion, I feel the best reason of all to get involved within your club is because it's fun! Yes, there is work that goes along with the fun, but I wouldn't trade my time I have spent working on the Board for any amount of money. I personally have learned new skills, made new friends, traveled the world checking out ski resorts and other destinations and had so much fun doing it all that I'm surprised someone didn't make me pay for it. Oh, I guess I did pay for it with my time, but I got so much more back than what I put in – and so will you.

So the next time someone asks you to serve on the Board of your club, say yes! I know it can be hard to find the time with our busy lives, but the benefits of volunteering are enormous for both you and those you serve. I guarantee you will get more out of the job than you ever put into it and have fun at the same time. Try it; you're going to like it!!*

Fall Line Ski Club's Board is asking YOU to volunteer for your club. In March we open nominations for elected officers: Vice President and Treasurer-Elect and board member. Contact Janice Lynch at JML@SICNJ.net if you can serve in any of these positions or on the Winter Trip or Social Committees. Your club needs YOU in order to continue. We are celebrating our 50th year and need YOU to keep us moving forward!!

BENIHANA CHERRY HILL

5255 Route 70, Pennsauken, NJ 08109

856-665-6320

Prices from 4-7pm

Like any good story, ours begins with the descendant for a Samurai Warrior and a small Tokyo coffee shop. Just after the war. Yunosuke Aoki (a samurai descendant and popular entertainer) decided to start a coffee shop with his wife Katsu. Wanting to offer something different than other coffee shops in the area. Yunosuke aoki rode his bike over 20 miles to purchase real sugar to serve in his shop.

This flair to do something different caught the eye of his son, Hiroaki, as did the shop's name, Benihana. After college, Hiroaki (or Rocky as he would become known) moved to the US to pursue his dream of opening his own restaurant. One that combined with his father's flair with doing something different with food that was truly memorable. But with little money to his name, Rocky's path was not an easy one.

He started by selling ice cream on the streets of Harlem while studying restaurant management at night. The ice cream business turned out to be very profitable, thanks in part to the colorful Japanese cocktail umbrellas he added to the treats and he managed to save up $10,000 for his restaurant. With his seed money in place, Rocky took out a loan and used it to start America's first Teppanyaki restaurant on West 56th street. Named after his parents Tokyo coffee shop. Benihana open in 1964, featuring an authentic Japanese farmhouse interior and food prepared on sheet grills right in front of customers. His highly trained chefs delighted customers with intricate knife work and theatrics. Not to mention delicious food. But it wasn't until legendary food critic Clementine Paddleford gave Benihana a rave review that the restaurant really took off, paying for itself in just six months.

Soon after, Rocky opened a second location in New York and one in Chicago and by 1972, there were six Benihana locations across the country, with more opening everyday. Sadly, Rocky Aoki died in 2008 at the age of 69. But, his legacy lives on with more than 70 Benihana restaurants in the US and across the world, and more than 100 million meals served.

We're not your average startup brewery.

We don't have a storybook tale about leaving boring desk jobs to turn a homebrewing hobby into a business. The truth is, we never did the desk job thing.

Head Brewer and Co-Founder Drew Perry has been brewing beer his whole professional life, working his way from the packaging line to head brewer. At his most recent gig, Drew lead recipe development and contract brewing for a Virginia-based operation that produced beer for dozens of other microbreweries. But the dream was always the same: to return to New Jersey and start his own brewery, using his own recipes and sharing the experience with friends and family.

Several months ago, that dream became a reality. And that's the story of Double Nickel—or at least the beginning.
